Maldon's Bluelight Youth Camp was a hive of activity last week when more than 50 people attended a camp for children with Muscular Dystrophy.

Muscular Dystrophy Australia hosted the five-day camp, which included a range of fun activities for the children and their carers such as a scary night time story telling by the fire, a range of arts and crafts and a fun Harry Potter night.

One of the most popular events was a zombie make-up masterclass last Friday when participants made a special excursion into the Maldon township dressed as zombies.

Muscular Dystrophy Australia executive director Boris Struk said the annual camp was once again huge success.

"The camp is all about giving families some respite and providing members of our affected community with a week of friendship, fun and a good time," Mr Struk said.
